

CENTRE FOR CREATIVE HEALTH ART PRIZE 2023

ABOUT CCH

The Centre for Creative Health (CCH) is a charity of The Hospital Research Foundation Group and a leader in the provision of best-practice art, music and diversional therapies, exhibition programs and other initiatives to improve health and wellbeing for patients, families and staff in South Australian hospitals.

We are proud to enhance the overall healthcare experience through our professional services which help to reduce stress and anxiety in patients, shorten recovery times and hospital stays, ease pain and improve clinical outcomes.

THE CENTRE FOR CREATIVE HEALTH ART PRIZE

Open to artworks that respond to themes of Healing, the Centre for Creative Health Art Prize occupies a unique place in both the health and arts landscapes in South Australia, recognising and promoting the important role of art in health and wellbeing.

Existing at a time when challenges of both our physical and mental health are paramount in our society, and with such a pertinent theme, the Centre for Creative Health Art Prize attracts great interest across the arts and health sectors and from the broader public of South Australia.

THE AIMS

- To promote the important role of art in health and wellbeing
- To invite further conversation about the positive impact of art in health
- To foster a greater connection and deeper understanding between the arts and health sectors

THE PRIZES

The non-acquisitive award is open in three categories:

- Main Prize category: $40,000
- Emerging artist category: $5,000
- Veteran and Emergency First Responder Prize: $5,000

A $1,000 People's Choice Prize is also offered.
